

Play More Golf and Pay Less

You have been playing the same golf course now for the past five years and you have gotten pretty good at traversing it. Your score is lower than it was when you first started. You can advise anyone one where just about any sand trap is or water hole, etc. But then you get invited to play another course with some friends of yours. You are excited because of all the years of practice you have under your belt. Then as the game is finished, you are discouraged because you played one of the worst games of your life.

This is an all too common problem. Let's face it! Golf courses are different from one to the next. Just because you can do well on one doesn't mean you are going to do so at others. It's one of the reasons the pros struggle with certain tournaments and excel at others. It's important to get experience in many different courses. That doesn't guarantee that you will do well at new courses going forward. But it will help you when playing harder courses because you will have more experience in diversifying your "portfolio of courses" so to speak.

If you are a veteran at a certain course, chances are good that you have a membership there which means you save a lot of money on your greens fees. Golf is an expensive sport to play so for me to suggest that you should branch out and get experience in many other sports means that you are going to have to shell out a whole bunch more money. And this is probably leaving you with a bad feeling about this article.

But what if I told you that you could play more golf and pay less money? You can diversify where you play and thus get the experience in playing other courses all while not having to pay for greens fees at these new courses. It sounds too good to be true, doesn't it? But it is true and it is within reach.

Golf Card is your ticket to playing more golf and paying less money. And at many more places too. The service is a club of affiliated golf courses with over 100,000 members. They have been around since the seventies. You may not have ever heard of them before but know that you know, it can be like your insider secret.

There are plenty of courses available and a great advantage is when you travel and want to play golf, you will be able to do so with the Golf Card. You can try it out for a full year and they will offer a refund if you are not satisfied within that year. Further, they have package deals for resorts and offer year round play with no seasonal restrictions. They even have a program where you can test golf products and keep those that you test.

Most golfers want to play more golf and pay less money. That gives you the ability to have more fun at differing courses. And now that you will play more courses you just may find that you will successfully lower your score at those new courses.
