

Design Your Child's Bedroom Makeover

Whether your child wants to be the latest rock star or they want to explore the jungle you can create a bedroom that your child will love. Their room should be a place that they can go and grow their imaginations. It builds self confidence and self esteem. You can create a great room with these simple tips.

Your child needs to let you know what they want in their bedroom so sit down and talk about some ideas they have and how you can make their dream room happen.

If music is the theme for your child you can make their dreams come true by decorating a room with music. Place musical notes on the border or throughout the designs on the wall. You can add sheet music in various places as well to place your notes on. If you have an old guitar, consider hanging it up on the wall in a corner of a room and build a karaoke stage for your child to perform on.

If a princess lives in your home you want to have a room that is fit for her. A princess themed bedroom is very popular among girls. You can turn the walls into an enchanted forest and place little fairies behind the trees hiding. You can purchase the stencil to create the fairies if you cannot create them on your own. If you have a canopy bed you may want to consider draping a silky material over it in pink shades to give it a princess look. If you don't have a canopy you can purchase one and add it to any bed.

No matter what theme you choose, every child's room should have a few important elements. Make sure your child has plenty of room to play and provide adequate storage for toys. A small desk or a table and chairs are great additions to any child's bedroom. This will give your child a designated place to study or do art work. You should also provide some small furniture for your child's room. Specialty shops carry tiny chairs and sofas for children as young as two or three years old. Teenagers love inflatable furniture which is a great inexpensive way to add some color and style to a boring space.

Last, make sure you include an area rug in your child's bedroom design. You can find rugs in every shape, size or color imaginable. You can often find rugs designed specifically for children that are made to match popular themes. Rugs offer a soft place to play or relax and they give a child's room another element of style and color.

You can decorate a child's room any way they want it. Your child will love the new look you have created.
